

Jess Fry

Jess currently works professionally as a dancer, singer, and actor based in New York City. In the fall of 2017, she made her Broadway debut in M. Butterfly written by David Henry Hwang, directed by Julie Taymor, choreographed by Ma Cong, and starring Clive Owen. Jess can also be seen in this season of the hit TV show, the Americans. She most recently performed in Jerome Robbins' Broadway at The Muny directed by Cynthia Onrubia. During her time on Acuity, Jess spent her summers training at programs including Hubbard Street Dance Chicago,

The School at Jacob's Pillow (Musical Theater), The Juilliard School, Boston Conservatory, San Francisco Conservatory of Dance, and American Ballet Theater. She has won numerous awards including the title of Miss Dance of America 2015, Youth America Grand Prix 3rd Place Classical Variation, and Performer of the Year at Encore National Convention. Jess was also honored to receive the Beach Blanket Babylon Scholarship for the Arts in 2015. In addition to dance, Jess is a passionate about physics. She attended Stanford University pursuing degrees in Physics and Theater; she also conducted research at CERN on the ATLAS experiment and SLAC national laboratory on the LZ experiment. Please visit her website at www.jessfry.com.